LEAD ACCIDENT INVESTIGATION WORKSHOP

An IOSH approved qualification for anyone with responsibility for leading or conducting investigations into personal injury or accidents in the workplace.

The workshop is delivered online, in a virtual classroom environment. On successful completion the delegates will be more confident and competent to analyse accidents, incidents, near-misses, equipment failures and operating issues in their own workplace. Delegates will uncover root causes that may previously have been overlooked and provide stronger and more robust corrective actions.

Duration: 3 days

On successful completion of the course delegates will:

- Understand the moral, legal and financial reasons for reporting and investigating accidents in the workplace
- Know the law with regard to managing safely, RIDDOR, employers' and employees' duties and responsibilities
- Recognise best practice in the accident investigation process, including elements of preparation, emergency response, evidence collection and analysis, report writing and making recommendations to improve safety
- Know how to work safely and efficiently at an accident site
- Be competent in conducting witness interviews and collecting material evidence from a variety of relevant sources
- Be able to analyse evidence to develop a no-blame report of what occurred
- Have a clearly defined strategy for recommending changes for future accident prevention

The course includes:

- Case studies and scenarios
- Preparing and conducting witness interviews
- Group analysis of evidence from a variety of sources
- Example reports
- Best practice in recommending change for future prevention
- RIDDOR and relevant Health and Safety Law
- On Day 3 there is an online assessment

The Institution of Occupational Safety and Health (IOSH) is the world's largest membership body for health and safety professionals, with over 47,000 members in 130 countries.

Formed in 1945, IOSH recently joined the family of civil and professional organisations accredited by the commonwealth. The status applies to fewer than 100 organisations.

IOSH have a commitment to creating a world of work which is safe, healthy and sustainable and to support this they certificate a range of courses designed to raise awareness and improve the safety culture of organisations.

Established in 2004, RHG Consult is a training provider based in the East Midlands, accredited by IOSH, the City & Guilds and the Institute of Leadership and Management.
